VANDERBILT STADIUM

HOME OF THE COMMODORES

Vanderbilt Stadium, an intimate 40,550-seat facility located in the heart of campus, has been the Commodores' home since 1981. The Commodores began playing home games at the current location in 1922. Dudley Field, as it was named, was the first stadium in the South to be erected exclusively for college football.

Vanderbilt dedicated its new stadium October 14, 1922, with a game for the ages. The Michigan Wolverines, a national power even in those days, came to Nashville as heavy favorites. The Commodores battled to a 0-0 tie, giving every one of the 20,000-plus fans in attendance a memory to cherish.

The game was played in a carnival-like atmosphere, with the game ball being dropped from an airplane. Vanderbilt's most momentous defensive stop of the day came as Michigan attempted a fourth-down play on the Commodores' goal line. A Vanderbilt defender, using one of the goal posts to push off of, stopped the advancing Michigan runner and squelched any hope the Wolverines had of scoring on that day.

Good play continued as the opening season at Dudley featured a Commodore squad that powered its way to an 8-0-1 season, outscoring its opponents 117-16 overall and surrendering zero points at home.

Before the dedication game, the field was named for Dr. William Dudley, Dean of the Vanderbilt Medical College from 1885 until his death in 1914. Dr. Dudley was the outstanding academic leader of his day and one of football's foremost national leaders.

Dudley organized the old Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, the predecessor to the Southeastern Conference, in 1893, and in 1906 helped organize the NCAA, of which he later served as vice-president. Dudley was also one of the first advocates of changing football scoring system to make touchdowns count six points instead of five and devaluing field goals from four to three points.

From Vanderbilt's pigskin inception in 1892 until 1922, the Commodores competed at Old Dudley Field. After the new stadium was built, Old Dudley was rechristened Curry Field, in honor of Irby (Rabbit) Curry, a standout football player from 1914-16. Curry was killed in World War I while flying a combat mission over France in 1918.

Dudley Field seated 20,000 spectators in 1922, but grew in fits and spurts to host 34,000 by 1960. The open end of the horseshoe-shaped stadium was fitted with bleacher sections in 1937 and additions were made to the west side of the stadium in 1949 and the east side in 1960.

The first night game at Dudley Field took place on September 25, 1954, when Vanderbilt fell to Baylor, 25-19. The lighting system was constructed in the summer of 1954 to facilitate the arrival of the Billy Graham Crusade in Nashville.

After a $10.1 million construction project in 1981, the new home of the Commodores, Vanderbilt Stadium, was dedicated in September as Vanderbilt posted a comeback victory, beating heavily favored Maryland, 23-17.

The 41,000-seat stadium was completed within a span of nine months, an amazing feat considering that Dudley Field had to be, with the exception of metal stands seating 12,088, totally demolished to begin work.

The process began in December of 1980 when a giant steel ball smashed in the concrete stands around the south end zone of Dudley Field.

Perhaps the most spectacular part of the construction process came when the existing steel bleachers, the last vestiges of Dudley Field, were raised some 10 feet through the use of 22 hydraulic jacks. Each set of stands weighed approximately 400 tons.

New aluminum bleacher seats had also been installed and a new AstroTurf playing surface placed down, replacing the Tartan Turf surface that was in place since 1970.

Foster and Creighton Co., brought the project in on time at a cost of $260 a seat, a bargain price by today's standards. More than 32 million pounds of concrete and 1.4 million pounds of steel were consumed in the construction of Vanderbilt Stadium.

The home and visitor dressing rooms feature 10,000 square feet of space. Ten restrooms, seven concession stands, two vending rooms, one food preparation room and two first aid stations are also incorporated in the stadium. A 17,000 square foot pressbox, approximately eight times the size of the original, consists of four levels with two elevators.

HEAD COACH DEREK MASON

SEVENTH SEASON

The 2020 season is the seventh for head coach Derek Mason, who continues to keep the Commodores trending upward both on and off the field.

The always energetic, fiery and fearless leader is only the second head coach on West End to lead the Commodores to multiple bowl games, while more importantly, continuing to graduate his student-athletes at a conference- and national-leading rate. Since arriving on campus in 2014, the focus of the SEC's fourth-longest tenured head coach on developing men of character and integrity not only has been highly successful, but exemplary of the program's three pillars: Relentless, Tough, Intelligent.

In 2019, Mason's Commodores upset a 22nd-ranked Missouri squad that was vying for the SEC East lead entering the game. The season's offense was led by three seniors who finished their careers among Vanderbilt's best at their positions: running back Ke'Shawn Vaughn, who rushed for 2,272 yards (third all-time) and 21 touchdowns (third all-time) in a two-year Commodore career; wide receiver Kaljia Lipscomb, who amassed 22 touchdown receptions (second all-time), 198 catches (fourth all-time) and 2,358 receiving yards (fifth all-time); and Jared Pinkney, who became the Commodores' most productive tight end in nearly four decades with 94 total receptions, 1,327 receiving yards and 12 touchdowns.

Mason and the Commodores dedicated the 2019 season to the memory of teammate Turner Cockrell, a tight end who passed away in December 2018 after a lengthy battle against melanoma. Mason and the Vanderbilt program helped one of Cockrell's classmates, Cody Markel, raise nearly $70,000 in a September event for the "Turner's Heroes" initiative he formed to honor Cockrell.

The 2018 season was a banner campaign for Vanderbilt under Mason's direction, with the Commodores capped a six-win regular season with their third straight victory over rival Tennessee and fifth in seven years. That victory propelled the Commodores to bowl eligibility for the second time in three seasons as the program faced off against Baylor in the Texas Bowl. Vaughn rushed for 243 yards and two touchdowns on just 13 carries against Baylor while showing outstanding breakaway speed with three runs of 66 yards or longer.

The Commodores averaged 411.2 yards/total offense per game in 2018, the program's second-highest average since World War II. They also averaged 28.5 points/game, fourth most since the 1940s, and quarterback Kyle Shurmur graduated as a 45-game starter and sole possessor of several program records, including career passing yards (8,865) and career touchdown passes (64). Vaughn produced one of the finest seasons ever by a Vanderbilt ball carrier, as the Nashville native rang up 1,243 rushing yards, second most in a single season at Vanderbilt and third in the SEC. Vaughn's 7.9 yards/rush ranked first among all SEC players and eighth nationally, with his 12 rushing scores ranking third in the league.

Vanderbilt's defense flew to the ball under first-year coordinator Jason Tarver in 2018. The Commodores produced 22 takeaways in 2018, the most for the program since 2013. The unit also hauled in 13 interceptions, tops during the Mason era.

Two Commodores were tabbed in the record-breaking 2019 NFL Draft held in Nashville. In front of his hometown crowd, cornerback Joejuan Williams was selected 45th overall by the New England Patriots, the highest-picked Commodore since Jordan Matthews went 42nd overall in 2014. Offensive lineman Justin Skule was selected by the San Francisco 49ers in the sixth round. Williams and Skule were the fifth and sixth Commodores, respectively, selected in the NFL Draft since Mason's arrival. Additionally, five more Vanderbilt student-athletes from the 2018 squad signed rookie free agent contracts with NFL teams, with rookie fullback Khari Blasingame eventually becoming the lead blocker for Tennessee Titans' All-Pro running back Derrick Henry.

Skule advanced to Super Bowl LIV as a valuable member of the San Francisco 49ers' offensive line. Three other Mason players at Vanderbilt were active members of the two Super Bowl teams: Matthews (49ers), Shurmur (Kansas City) and linebacker Josh Smith (Kansas City).

Off the field, 59 student-athletes earned a grade-point average of 3.0 or higher, including 18 on the dean's list (3.5 or higher) and four with a perfect 4.0. Forty Commodores landed on the SEC Academic Honor roll, and Vanderbilt scored a 991 in the NCAA's Academic Progress Rate scores, the highest of any SEC program and fourth-best among Power Five schools. Three players studied abroad in France, another example of the full student-athlete experience at Vanderbilt. Blasingame also became the male recipient of the Arthur Ashe Award.

Five of Mason's Commodores have been accepted into the prestigious Vanderbilt Medical School, in addition to more than 240 SEC Academic Honor Roll recipients and over 110 dean's list honorees.

Mason's administration of the Vanderbilt program also includes innovation. He has been instrumental in creating a summer internship program for Commodore student-athletes that is one of the most unique in the nation. Started in 2014 within the football team, the program has been expanded to each of Vanderbilt's varsity squads with Mason's staff teaming with Nashville-area businesses to provide unparalleled work experience opportunities for student-athletes. In the last five years, more than a dozen Commodores have participated in study abroad programs in the summer, including linebacker Kenny Hebert, tight end Braden Kopp and linebacker Andre Mintze studying in 2019.

Mason continues to upgrade the Commodore coaching staff, most recently attracting noted offensive coordinator Todd Fitch from Louisiana Tech and defensive coordinator Ted Roof following his successful stops at Appalachian State, Georgia Tech, Auburn and Penn State. The addition of wide receivers coach Tony Ball also brought more than three decades of coaching experience to the Commodores' offensive staff.

Prior to the 2019 season, Mason added acclaimed veteran SEC running backs coach Tim Horton and Devin Fitzsimmons in from the NFL's Detroit Lions to direct the Commodore special teams and tight end corps.

In addition to Vaughn's superb 2018 rushing campaign, fellow running back

Ralph Webb concluded his career in 2017 as the leading rusher in school history and seventh-leading rusher in SEC history. Webb set a bushel of school single and career records, including 4,173 rushing yards, 931 rushing attempts and 32 rushing touchdowns.

Mason guided Vanderbilt to its eighth postseason appearance in 2016 with a trip to the Independence Bowl. The Commodores finished the regular season 6-6, including four wins over the final six games. The season featured marquee SEC victories over Georgia, Ole Miss and No. 24 Tennessee. The Commodores closed the regular season by scoring a combined 83 points in wins over the Rebels and Volunteers.

In 2016, inside linebacker Zach Cunningham became Vanderbilt's first consensus All-American in more than three decades, sweeping first-team honors from every prominent national outlet.

Mason became Vanderbilt's 28th head coach in January 2014, coming to Nashville after serving as Stanford's associate head coach and Willie Shaw Director of Defense.

The architect of Stanford's vaunted 3-4 defense, Mason was elevated to the Cardinal's defensive coordinator in 2011 after leading the program to a pair of Rose Bowl appearances and consecutive Pac-12 titles. Mason's elite defensive units at Stanford ranked among the NCAA's best in defensive efficiency for three consecutive seasons. While facing seven ranked opponents and one of the nation's toughest schedules in 2013, Stanford ranked third nationally in rushing defense (89.4 yards), 10th in scoring defense (19.0 points) and 16th in total offense (343.1 yards). The Cardinal was also one of only five teams to allow less than 100 rushing yards per game in 2013 and ranked fifth nationally with 44 sacks and seventh with 109 tackles for loss.

In 2012, Mason was a finalist for the Broyles Award, given annually to the nation's top assistant coach, after directing a Stanford defense widely considered the program's finest unit ever.

Mason's leadership paved the way to a historic defensive output, breaking Stanford's single-season record with 57 sacks and pacing the Pac-12 in scoring defense, total defense and rushing defense, and helped the Cardinal to an 11-2 season capped off with a Rose Bowl title. In 11 of 14 games in 2012, Stanford held its opponent to 20 or fewer points, including a 14-point effort in overtime win at top-ranked Oregon, who led the FBS with a 54.8 scoring average. The 2012 Stanford defense held eight of 13 opponents under 100 yards rushing, and in a string of three consecutive games, the Cardinal recorded three of its top-10 single-game rushing defense performances in team history.

In 2011, Mason's first year as co-defensive coordinator, he teamed with former Vanderbilt defensive coordinator Jason Tarver to mold Stanford into one of the Pac-12's top defensive units. The unit ranked either first or second in the Pac-12 in six defensive categories, including rushing defense, third-down conversion defense, scoring defense, total defense, sacks and opponent first downs.

Mason also helped develop an array of Stanford defensive standouts, including All-Pro cornerback Richard Sherman, All-America defensive end Trent Murphy, All-America linebacker Shayne Skov and All-Pac-12 safety Ed Reynolds.

Prior to his arrival in Palo Alto, Mason served as an assistant defensive back coach for the Minnesota Vikings from 2007 to 2009. He played a vital role in the team ranking sixth in total defense in 2008 and 2009 as the Vikings won NFC North titles each season. Mason was introduced to the NFL coaching circles through the Minority Fellowship program. He joined the Vikings staff in 2007, where he worked with defensive backs coach Joe Woods.

Before joining the Vikings, Mason tutored wide receivers at Ohio under Frank Solich, helping the Bobcats improve from 4-7 in 2005 to a 9-5 campaign and GMAC Bowl appearance the following year. Mason spent the 2004 season as wide receivers coach at New Mexico State, where the Aggies led the conference in passing.

During the 2002 campaign, Mason mentored receivers and assisted with special teams at Utah. The Utes featured the NFL Draft's No. 1 overall pick in quarterback Alex Smith and wide receiver Paris Warren, an eventual seventh-round pick.

Mason's move to Utah came after a three-year stint at Bucknell (1999-2001) in which he gained his first experience as a defensive assistant coach. At Bucknell, Mason served as defensive backs mentor for three straight winning Bison squads.

Mason's first three collegiate positions came as an offensive assistant at Mesa (Ariz.) Community College in 1994, Weber State in 1995-96 and Idaho State in 1997-98.

As a player, Mason was a two-year starter and four-year letter winner at Northern Arizona. During his undergraduate career, Mason was influenced by several outstanding coaches, including Andy Reid, head coach of the reigning Super Bowl champion Kansas City Chiefs. Other mentors from Mason's Northern Arizona days former NFL head coaches Brad Childress and Marty Mornhinweg.

Mason earned a bachelor's degree in criminal justice from Northern Arizona in 1993. A native of Phoenix, Mason was a standout football player at Camelback High School.

Derek and his wife, LeighAnne, have two daughters, Makenzie and Sydney.

In 2016 season, Tech finished with a 9-5 record with three Bulldogs winning top individual C-USA awards including Most Valuable Player (Ryan Higgins), Offensive Player of the Year (Carlos Henderson) and Special Teams Player of the Year (Henderson). The Bulldog offense led the C-USA in completion percentage (66.7), first downs (358) and passing offense (363.4 ypg) while receivers Trent Taylor and Henderson ranked first (and fifth nationally with 1,803 and 1,535 receiving yards, respectively).

The Vanderbilt role is Fitch's fifth stint as offensive coordinator after holding similar positions at Louisiana Tech, Boston College, East Carolina and South Florida. He has coached several notable NFL players including Tennessee Titan running back Chris Johnson (East Carolina), and Troy Williamson (South Carolina).

Prior to joining Louisiana Tech, Fitch spent three years at Boston College first as wide receivers coach and passing game coordinator (2013-14) and then as offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach (2015).

TONY BALL

WIDE RECEIVERS

First Season at Vanderbilt

35th Season Overall | Chattanooga '83

THE BALL FILE

The 2020 season is the first on West End for veteran Southeastern Conference coach Tony Ball.

Ball brought more than three decades of coaching experience — including tenures at Georgia and LSU — to the Commodores' offensive staff. He joined Vanderbilt after serving as passing game coordinator and receivers coach at Texas-San Antonio in 2019.

From 2017-18, Ball was running backs coach at Louisiana Tech, where he served on the same staff as Todd Fitch, who is entering his first year as Vanderbilt's offensive coordinator.

At Louisiana Tech, Ball and Fitch helped the Bulldogs to 15 victories and back-to-back bowl wins. Ball's top pupil at Louisiana Tech was Boston Scott, who was selected by the New Orleans Saints in the sixth round of the 2018 NFL Draft.

Ball coached Texas-San Antonio wide receivers Zahkari Franklin and Sheldon Jones to solid 2019 campaigns.

Ball was the wide receivers coach at LSU in 2015 under Les Miles, where he mentored current NFL receivers D.J. Chark, a second-round selection by the Jacksonville Jaguars, Malachi Dupre of the Arizona Cardinals and Trey Quinn of the Washington Redskins.

Prior to joining LSU, Ball worked nine seasons at Georgia (2006-14), the last six as the wide receivers coach after tutoring the running backs for his first three years. The Bulldogs went 84-35 overall during Ball's tenure and captured two SEC Eastern Division championships. Ball's receivers in 2012 and 2013 were part of two of the most prolific offenses in Georgia school history. Two-time All-American receiver A.J. Green, running back Knowshon Moreno and current NFL receivers Marlon Brown, Chris Conley, Tavarres King and Malcolm Mitchell were among Ball's top players at Georgia.

Ball spent eight years at Virginia Tech (1998-05), where he mentored some of Virginia Tech's top receivers, including Ernest Wilford, the school's all-time receptions leader.

A former standout running back at Chattanooga, Ball began his coaching career at Austin Peay as a graduate assistant in 1985. He served as a volunteer running backs coach at South Carolina in 1987 before returning to Chattanooga in 1988 to coach receivers. Ball spent the next season coaching running backs at East Tennessee State before again returning to Chattanooga again to tutor the receivers. He also spent three years as the running backs coach at Holy Cross in 1992-94 before joining the Louisville staff as the wide receivers coach in 1995-97 prior to his eight-year tenure at Virginia Tech.

Ball was a running back and special teams star in 1977-80 at Chattanooga, where he set several school kickoff return records. In 2006, he was inducted into Chattanooga's Athletics Hall of Fame and he also was named to the school's All-Century Team in 2003.

Ball earned his bachelor's degree in criminal justice from Chattanooga in 1983 and his master's in health and nutrition from Austin Peay in 1985.

He and his wife, Maria, have two children, Anthony and Keshea.

Third Season at Vanderbilt

Third Season Overall | Vanderbilt '07

THE HAYE FILE

The 2020 season marks the second year for Jovan Haye, a former Vanderbilt defensive standout and a veteran of the NFL, to serve as the Commodores' defensive line coach.

In 2019, Haye mentored a young line that featured defensive end Dayo Odeyingbo, and interior tackles Drew Birchmeier, Cameron Tidd and Daevion Davis.

In 2018, Haye served as a Vanderbilt quality control, assisting the defensive staff that worked with coordinator Jason Tarver.

Haye was a two-time captain and All-Southeastern Conference performer for the Commodores while starting 34 games on the defensive line from 2002-04.

As an All-SEC defensive end in 2003, Haye was a Nagurski Award and Hendricks Trophy candidate, registering 76 tackles, 12.5 tackles for loss and 8.5 quarterback sacks. That year, he set a modern team record with 4.5 tackles for loss at TCU, a performance that included three sacks, two forced fumbles and an interception.

As a senior, Haye finished with 48 tackles, 3.5 tackles for loss and a sack.

He ended his Vanderbilt career with 11.5 sacks and 17 tackles for loss among 149 tackles.

Haye was selected in the sixth round of the 2005 NFL Draft by Carolina. He played for one season with the Panthers before moving on to the Cleveland Browns for the 2006 season.

Henry has coached in three bowl games, including the 2018 Gator Bowl, 2017 Sun Bowl and 2015 Liberty Bowl.

Henry served as a secondary coach at NC State since the 2017 season. After starting with the Wolfpack as a safeties coach, he worked with NC State nickel backs during the 2018 and 2019 seasons.

The Wolfpack secondary registered 28 interceptions during Henry's tenure, including 14 picks in 2017, the most by a NC State defensive unit since 2011.

With the help of Henry and Roof, the 2018 Wolfpack featured one of the ACC's most improved defenses. The unit ranked 17th nationally in third-down defense (33.3%), 19th in red-zone defense (76.7%) and 45th in scoring defense (24.9 points/game). The 2018 defense also ranked 42nd nationally in passes defended, including 10 interceptions.

In 2017, Henry's first year on staff, the NC State defense ranked 27th nationally with 66 defended passes and 32nd nationally with 14 interceptions.

Henry's first full-time coaching position came in 2016 at Rutgers, where he served as defensive backs coach for head coach Chris Ash. That season, the Scarlet Knights ranked 18th nationally in pass defense (186.5 yards/game). The secondary was led by sophomore defensive back Blessuan Austin, who ranked among the Big Ten leaders with 14 defended passes.

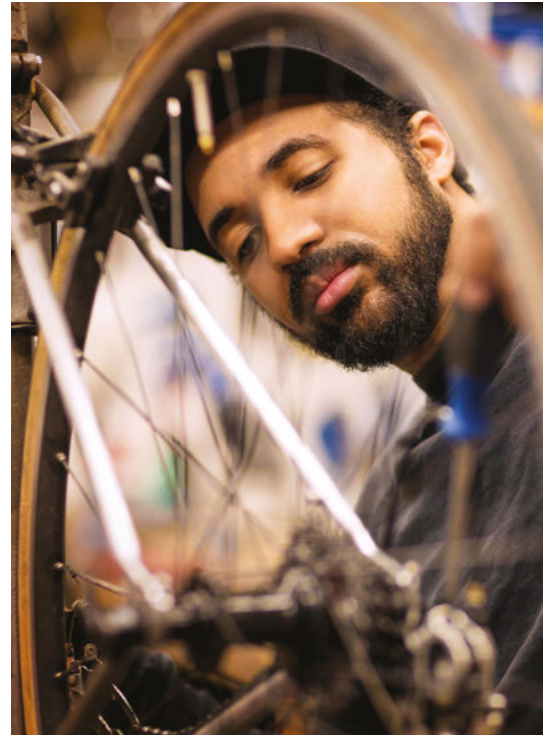

Henry began his coaching career in the Southeastern Conference, serving as a defensive graduate assistant at Arkansas under head coach Bret Bielema in 2014 and 2015. In Henry's final year at Arkansas, the Razorbacks captured five SEC victories and won six of their last seven games, including a victory in the Liberty Bowl.

Henry played under Bielema at Wisconsin where he was a standout defensive back, earning 32 starts from 2007-11. Henry helped the Badgers to three consecutive Big Ten titles and Rose Bowl appearances. Henry finished his Wisconsin career with seven interceptions and 23 defended passes.

As a senior in 2011, Henry was a first team All-Big 10 performer and quarterfinalist for the Lott IMPACT Trophy. He garnered four interceptions and 67 tackles that season.

Henry was a three-time Academic All-Big Ten recipient. He earned a bachelor's degree in consumer affairs from Wisconsin in 2011. He completed a master's degree in sports management from Arkansas in 2015.

Second Season at Vanderbilt

30th Season Overall | Arkansas '90

THE HORTON FILE

The 2020 season is the second on the Vanderbilt staff for longtime Southeastern Conference coach Tim Horton, who serves as Derek Mason's running backs coach.

Horton has coached in the SEC for the last 12 years, serving as the offensive assistant coach at Auburn and Arkansas. During that time, he has coached five SEC players of the year and nine all-conference running backs.

In 2019, Horton's top Vanderbilt pupil Ke'Shawn Vaughn topped the Commodore offense with 1,028 rushing yards, 1,298 all-purpose yards and 10 touchdowns.

From 2013-18, Horton served as Auburn's running backs coach. He also served as the Tigers' recruiting coordinator in 2015-16. In 2018, the Tiger offense averaged 30.9 points/game, 389.9 total yards and 167.5 rushing yards. Horton's top pupil last year, Ja'Tarvious Whitlow, earned All-SEC freshman recognition after rushing for 787 yards and six touchdowns.

From 2013-17 Horton coached four running backs that paced the SEC in rushing: Heisman Trophy finalist Tre Mason (2013), Cameron Artis-Payne (2014), Kamryn Pettway (2016) and Kerryon Johnson (2017). Mason and Johnson both earned SEC Offensive Player of the Year honors during Horton's tenure.

In 2017, Horton coordinated special teams for the Tigers and coached kicker Daniel Carlson, who was the SEC's special teams player of the year. Horton became the only assistant in league history to coach the SEC offensive and special teams players of the year in the same season.

From 2007-12, Horton served a similar capacity at the Arkansas where he starred as an undergraduate in the 1980s. At Arkansas, where he was also recruiting coordinator, Horton was one of just two coaches in the nation to coach four different 1,000-yard rushers from 2007-10, including 2007 Doak Walker Award winner Darren McFadden and All-American Felix Jones.

Horton has coached in 13 bowl games, including the 2013 NCAA national championship game.

Horton has also succeeded in preparing running backs for the NFL. Thirteen different running backs coached by Horton have become NFL starters, including McFadden, Jones, Peyton Hillis, Mason, Artis-Payne, Payton Barber and Johnson.

Prior to coaching at Arkansas, Horton spent the 2006 season as running backs coach at Kansas State and wide receivers and running backs coach at Air Force from 1999-2005. He began his coaching career at Appalachian State in 1990, helping the program to a 67-32 record during eight seasons, including Southern Conference championships in 1991 and 1995 and five NCAA Division I-AA playoff appearances.

Horton was a four-year letterwinner at Arkansas, starting as a split end and punt returner from 1987-89. As a senior captain, Horton earned second-team All-SWC honors after hauling in 23 catches for 453 yards and serving as the team's top punt returner. During Horton's Arkansas playing career, the Razorbacks compiled a 38-11 record, won back-to-back SWC titles (1988-89) and appeared in four straight bowl games.

Horton and his wife, Lauren, are the parents of a daughter, Caroline, and a son, Jackson.

DEFENSIVE SECONDARY

Sixth Season at Vanderbilt

11th Season Overall | Rhodes '09

THE MATTIOLI FILE

Marc Mattioli joined Derek Mason's defensive staff in 2015. The 2020 season is his fifth as the Commodores' defensive secondary coach.

In 2019, three of Mattioli's young safeties — Tae Daley, Deshaun Jenkins and Brendon Harris — ranked among the Commodores' top four tackles, with each producing more than 50 stops. Additionally, Daley topped the team and ranked among Southeastern Conference leaders with three interceptions.

In 2018, Mattioli developed LaDarius Wiley, Frank Coppet and Daley into productive starting safeties. The trio ranked among Vanderbilt's top-10 tacklers during the season. Wiley, a two-year starter, eventually signed an NFL undrafted free agent deal with the Tennessee Titans. Daley and Coppet, both seeing significant collegiate action for the first time, registered 45 and 30 tackles, respectively. Coppet also ranked second on the team with three interceptions.

Wiley is Mattioli's second understudy to move to the next level. Mattioli also coached two-year starting cornerback Tre Herndon, who made the Jacksonville Jaguars' 2018-19 active roster after signing as a rookie free agent.

Mattioli started with the Commodores in 2014 as safeties coach, coming from Stanford where he served as a defensive graduate assistant under Mason.

Mattioli joined Vanderbilt after serving three years at Stanford, including two seasons with Mason as a defensive graduate assistant.

Mattioli was a defensive quality control assistant for the Cardinal secondary in 2014, focusing his efforts on the Stanford secondary. In 2012-13, he served as a defensive graduate assistant at Stanford, helping Mason as a defensive backs and safeties mentor.

In 2014, Stanford finished second nationally in scoring defense, third in total defense, and eighth in passing defense. The Cardinal secondary was led by senior strong safety Jordan Richards with three interceptions and three forced fumbles.

Mattioli also worked with highly ranked Stanford defenses as a graduate assistant in 2012 and 2013. The Cardinal ranked 10th nationally in scoring defense during a run to the Rose Bowl in 2013, and led the Pac-12 in scoring defense and total defense 2012 campaign that included another Rose Bowl appearance and conference title.

Prior to joining the Stanford staff, Mattioli served two seasons as the defensive line coach for LaGrange College southwest of Atlanta.

A native of Rochester, New York, Mattioli played tight end as a freshman at Rhodes College before transitioning to the defensive line for his final three campaigns. He served as team captain as a senior in 2008, and was part of the 2006 Rhodes defense that ranked fifth nationally.

Mattioli graduated from Rhodes with a degree in political science. He also earned a master's degree from LaGrange College and was working toward another master's degree in liberal arts at Stanford.

THE ROSSOMANDO FILE

The 2020 season is the first for Pete Rossomando as Vanderbilt's offensive line coach for Derek Mason's staff. Rossomando came to Nashville after serving as offensive line coach at Rutgers in 2019.

Previously he was head coach at Central Connecticut State from 2014-18. In 2018, Rossomando guided Central Connecticut State to a 6-4 record. In 2017, Rossomando led the Blue Devils to the school's initial NCAA Division I FCS playoff appearance by winning the Northeast Conference crown with a perfect 6-0 record, the program's first unbeaten league record since 2008. The campaign also included an eight-game winning streak.

Rossomando's 2017 defense led all FCS teams in defensive touchdowns and was among the national leaders in turnover margin, helping Central Connecticut to the NEC's first unbeaten record since 2008. For his efforts, Rossomando was named the Northeast Conference Coach of the Year and was a finalist for the Eddie Robinson National Coach of the Year.

Prior to accepting the Central Connecticut State post, Rossomando spent five seasons as the head coach at the University of New Haven. During that time, he led the Chargers to a 42-13 record, two NCAA Division II playoff appearances and coached several all-conference and All-America student-athletes.

Rossomando was named head coach at New Haven in December 2007 after the university reinstated its football program after a five-year hiatus. He rebuilt the Chargers into one of the best Division II programs in the country.

In his final three seasons, the Chargers posted an overall record of 29-6 (2011-13) and a 20-2 mark in Northeast-10 games.

Rossomando was named Liberty Mutual NCAA Division II National Coach of the Year following the 2012 season. He also earned three Northeast-10 Coach of the Year awards as the head coach of the Chargers (2010-12).

Prior to taking the New Haven head coaching job, Rossomando was an assistant coach at the University at Albany for seven seasons (2001-07). He served as associate head coach, offensive coordinator and offensive line coach for his final three seasons at the school.

With Rossomando on the sidelines, Albany won Northeast Conference Championships in 2002, 2003 and 2007.

Rossomando has also served as an assistant at Cortland State (2000) and Northeastern (1999). His collegiate coaching career began in 1994 as an assistant at New Haven under head coach Tony Sparano. While a New Haven assistant, Rossomando helped the Chargers advance to the NCAA playoffs in 1995 and again in 1997 when the team reached the Division II national championship game.

Rossomando played at Boston University, seeing action on the offensive and defensive lines from 1990-93. He helped the 1993 Terriers to an undefeated regular season, Yankee Conference championship and NCAA Division II playoff appearance.

A native of Staten Island, N.Y., Rossomando was a standout player at Port Richmond High School and was named the 1989 Staten Island Player of the Year.

Rossomando and his wife Jessica have three children: Reese, Gianna and Nicholas.

THE UDEZE FILE

Kenechi Udeze, who served on staff for LSU's 2019 national championship run, joined Vanderbilt as its linebackers coach in 2020.

Udeze assisted Tiger defensive coordinator Dave Aranda as an analyst during LSU's 15-0 campaign capped by an impressive 42-25 victory over Clemson in the College Football Playoff title game.

The LSU defense was one of the nation's most opportunistic units, ranking fifth nationally with 17 interceptions and 15th in turnover margin. The Tigers were superb in scoring defense (21.9 points/game) and total defense (343.5 yards/game).

Udeze joined the LSU staff after having played for Tiger head coach Ed Orgeron at USC, where he was a consensus All-America defensive end in 2003.

Prior to joining LSU, Udeze served on the defensive staff at his alma mater from 2016-18 after serving as an assistant strength and conditioning coach in 2015.

In 2016, the defensive front helped USC limit opponents to 139.6 rushing yards/game. One of Udeze's top products, Stevie Tu'ikolovatu, earned Rose Bowl Defensive MVP honors and become a seventh-round NFL Draft choice. In 2017, the Trojans led the nation with 46 sacks.

Udeze helped bring in arguably the nation's best defensive line class with five-star defensive tackle Marlon Tuipulotu, five-star Jay Tufele, Caleb Tremblay and three-star gems Brandon Pili and Lichtenstein. He was also involved with the recruitments of All-Americans Siaki Ika and Ty Robinson, two of USC's major 2019 defensive line targets.

Udeze was a three-year starter from 2001-03 at defensive end for USC, racking up 135 tackles, 51 tackles for loss, 28 sacks, an NCAA record-tying 14 forced fumbles and three fumble recoveries in his career.

As a senior in 2003, Udeze earned consensus first-team All-America status during USC's national championship run, leading the nation with 16.5 sacks and ranking fourth with 26 tackles for loss. He was a first-round selection in the 2005 NFL Draft, taken 20th overall by the Minnesota Vikings. He was a four-year starter at defensive end for the Vikings.

He was a multi-sport standout at Verbum Dei High School in Los Angeles.

STRENGTH COACH

JAMES DOBSON

HEAD STRENGTH COACH

Sixth Season at Vanderbilt

24th Season Overall | Wisconsin '96

THE DOBSON FILE

The 2020 season is the sixth for Vanderbilt head strength coach James Dobson. Dobson oversees all aspects of the Vanderbilt strength program for football, which includes winter conditioning, summer workouts and in-season training.

Dobson has placed his stamp on the Commodore program, molding an enthusiastic roster that strides to play every snap with relentlessness, toughness and intelligence. The Commodores' overall fitness has been on display in the fourth quarter, outscoring opponents in four of the last five years. The Commodores have also enjoyed postseason bowl appearances in 2016 and 2018, and registered impressive regular-season finale victories over Tennessee in three of the last four seasons.

In the last six years, Dobson has trained seven Commodores selected in the NFL draft, including running back Ke'Shawn Vaughn, cornerback Joejuan Williams, linebackers Zach Cunningham and Oren Burks, offensive lineman Justin Skule and 21 others who have earned rookie free agent deals.

Prior to joining Vanderbilt, Dobson, a native of Mt. Horeb, Wis., spent seven years guiding Nebraska's conditioning programs under former Cornhusker football head coach Bo Pelini. In Dobson's tenure, Nebraska was one of three teams nationally, joining Alabama and Oregon, to post at least nine wins every year.

The 2014 Nebraska squad, ranked No. 22 by the coaches and No. 25 by the Associated Press, faced Southern California in the Holiday Bowl. The Huskers made a postseason bowl appearance every year in Dobson's tenure.

Utilizing Dobson's strength program, the Huskers were regarded among the nation's most outstanding fourth quarter teams. In 2014, the Huskers outscored opponents by a remarkable 119-62 margin. Nebraska also scored more fourth-quarter points by its foes in 2008 (155-52), 2009 (96-32), 2010 (64-53) and 2012 (101-82).

In 2014, Dobson's conditioning program helped the powerful Nebraska offense average 37.4 points, 248.2 rushing yards and 446.2 total yards.

Dobson's strength and conditioning efforts also produced a tenacious Nebraska squad. The Huskers were known for producing remarkable comeback victories in recent years, including four such wins during the 2012 season and a thrilling 37-34 overtime victory over Iowa in the 2014 regular season finale.

In 2014, Husker standout running back Ameer Abdullah, defensive end Randy Gregory and freshman wide receiver/punt returner De'Mornay Pierson-El garnered All-America honors. Abdullah also ranked among the nation's leading running backs, producing nearly 1,600 rushing yards.

In 2012, Dobson was one of 15 strength and conditioning coaches certified as a Master Strength and Conditioning Coach by the Collegiate Strength and Conditioning Coaches Association.

Prior to Nebraska, Dobson spent nine years with the Iowa Hawkeye football program. He was in Iowa City during one of the most successful periods in school history. Iowa appeared in bowl games in six seasons and won 38 games from 2002 to 2005. Iowa won 25 Big Ten games in that same period, including Big Ten titles in 2002 and 2004.

Dobson has had a history of working with some of the top college football players in the country over the past decade. Top pupils Dobson has worked with include Abdullah, defensive tackle Ndamukong Suh, cornerback Prince Amukamara and linebacker Lavonte David at Nebraska along with safety Bob Sanders, tight end Dallas Clark, offensive tackle Robert Gallery and linebacker Chad Greenway at Iowa.

Suh was a Heisman finalist and the most decorated defensive lineman in nearly two decades while earning national player-of-the-year honors for the Cornhuskers in 2009. The impact of Dobson and the NU strength and conditioning program on Suh is evident. Following the completion of his career, Suh showed his appreciation by donating $2 million to enhance the four-year old Nebraska strength and conditioning facility.

Amukamara developed into a first-round NFL Draft pick in 2011 after earning first-team All-America honors for the Huskers in 2010. He went on to win the Super Bowl with the New York Giants in his first season in the league. Dobson helped prepare David to make a seamless transition to major college football. After starring as a junior college All-American, David recorded the most tackles in school history as a junior in 2010, before earning All-America honors in 2011. David was selected in the second round of the 2012 NFL Draft.

Sanders earned All-America honors at Iowa in 2003, and was the 2007 NFL Defensive Player of the Year with the Indianapolis Colts. Clark began his Hawkeye career as a walk-on linebacker, but moved to tight end and went on to earn All-America honors in 2002, before being a first-round draft pick. Gallery came to Iowa as a 240-pound tight end, and through the strength program, he left as a 320-pound offensive tackle, won the 2003 Outland Trophy and was the second overall selection in the 2004 draft. Greenway earned All-America honors as a senior in 2005, and was a first-round pick of the Minnesota Vikings in 2006.

In addition to his experience at Iowa, Dobson worked for two years as an assistant strength and conditioning coach at Southern Methodist, working with the Mustangs' football, volleyball and basketball squad.

Dobson attended the University of Wisconsin-Madison, where he worked as a student assistant with the Badger football team for three seasons. He earned his bachelor's degree in kinesiology from Wisconsin in 1996, and his master's of science and administration degree from Central Michigan in 2004.

A certified strength and conditioning specialist and a member of the Collegiate Strength and Conditioning Coaches Association and the National Strength and Conditioning Association.

Dobson and his wife, Rebecca, have a son, Colton, and a daughter, Elise.

BARNES & NOBLE AT VANDERBILT

VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY

A STORIED HISTORY

Cornelius Vanderbilt, known as “the Commodore,” was in his 79th year when he decided to make the gift that founded Vanderbilt University in the spring of 1873.

The $1 million that he gave to endow and build the university was Vanderbilt’s only major philanthropy. Methodist Bishop Holland N. McTyeire of Nashville, husband of Amelia Townsend who was a cousin of Vanderbilt’s young second wife Frank Crawford, went to New York for medical treatment early in 1873 and spent time recovering in the Vanderbilt mansion. He won the Vanderbilts’ admiration and support for the project of building a university in the South that would “contribute to strengthening the ties which should exist between all sections of our common country.”

McTyeire chose the site for the campus, supervised the construction of buildings and personally planted many of the trees that today make Vanderbilt a national arboretum. At the outset, the university consisted of one Main Building (now Kirkland Hall), an astronomical observatory and houses for professors. Landon C. Garland was Vanderbilt’s first chancellor, serving from 1875 to 1893. He advised McTyeire in selecting the faculty, arranged the curriculum and set the policies of the university.

For the first 40 years of its existence, Vanderbilt was under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The Vanderbilt Board of Trust severed its ties with the church in June 1914 as a result of a dispute with the bishops over who would appoint university trustees.

From the outset, Vanderbilt met two definitions of a university: It offered work in the liberal arts and sciences beyond the baccalaureate degree and it embraced several professional schools in addition to its college. James H. Kirkland, the longest serving chancellor in university history (1893-1937), followed Chancellor Garland. He guided Vanderbilt to rebuild after a fire in 1905 that consumed the main building, which was renamed in Kirkland’s honor, and all its contents. He also navigated the university through the separation from the Methodist Church. Notable advances in graduate studies were made under the third chancellor, Oliver Cromwell Carmichael (1937-46). He also created the Joint University Library, brought about by a coalition of Vanderbilt, Peabody College and Scarritt College.

Remarkable continuity has characterized the government of Vanderbilt. The original charter, issued in 1872, was amended in 1873 to make the legal name of the corporation “The Vanderbilt University.” The charter has not been altered since.

The university is self-governing under a Board of Trust that, since the beginning, has elected its own members and officers. The university’s general governance is vested in the Board of Trust. The immediate government of the university is committed to the chancellor, who is elected by the Board of Trust.

The original Vanderbilt campus consisted of 75 acres. By 1960, the campus had spread to about 260 acres of land. When George Peabody College for Teachers merged with Vanderbilt in 1979, about 53 acres were added.

Vanderbilt’s student enrollment tended to double itself each 25 years during the first century of the university’s history: 307 in the fall of 1875; 754 in 1900; 1,377 in 1925; 3,529 in 1950; 7,034 in 1975. In the fall of 1999 the enrollment was 10,127.

In the planning of Vanderbilt, the assumption seemed to be that it would be an all-male institution. Yet the board never enacted rules prohibiting women. At least one woman attended Vanderbilt classes every year from 1875 on. Most came to classes by courtesy of professors or as special or irregular (non-degree) students. From 1892 to 1901 women at Vanderbilt gained full legal equality except in one respect -- access to dorms. In 1894 the faculty and board allowed women to compete for academic prizes. By 1897, four or five women entered with each freshman class. By 1913 the student body contained 78 women, or just more than 20 percent of the academic enrollment.

National recognition of the university’s status came in 1949 with election of Vanderbilt to membership in the select Association of American Universities. In the 1950s Vanderbilt began to outgrow its provincial roots and to measure its achievements by national standards under the leadership of Chancellor Harvie Branscomb. By its 90th anniversary in 1963, Vanderbilt for the first time ranked in the top 20 private universities in the United States.

A STORIED HISTORY

Vanderbilt continued to excel in research, and the number of university buildings more than doubled under the leadership of Chancellors Alexander Heard (1963-1982) and Joe B. Wyatt (1982-2000), only the fifth and sixth chancellors in Vanderbilt's long and distinguished history. Heard added three schools (Blair, the Owen Graduate School of Management and Peabody College) to the seven already existing and constructed three dozen buildings. During Wyatt's tenure, Vanderbilt acquired or built one-third of the campus buildings and made great strides in diversity, volunteerism and technology.

The university grew and changed significantly under its seventh chancellor, Gordon Gee, who served from 2000 to 2007. Vanderbilt led the country in the rate of growth for academic research funding, which increased to more than $450 million and became one of the most selective undergraduate institutions in the country.

In March 2008, Nicholas S. Zeppos was named Vanderbilt's eighth chancellor. The appointment came following Zeppos' many years of service to the university, where he started as an assistant law professor in 1987, and went on to serve as dean of the law school and Vanderbilt's academic provost.

Shortly after his appointment, Zeppos led the university through the most challenging economic times since the Great Depression, a period from which Vanderbilt emerged relatively unscathed. A mark of the university's commitment to positive change, even amid economic calamity, Zeppos implemented Opportunity Vanderbilt in 2008—a pioneering initiative that would fund loan-free tuition for the nation's most deserving students, regardless of their background or financial means.

That same year, another transformation took hold for undergraduates: in 2008, Vanderbilt opened the Martha Ingram Commons, a living-learning residential hall that enables a fully holistic approach to education. The Commons marked the first of Vanderbilt's Residential College system, followed by Warren and Moore colleges, which opened in 2014 and E. Bronson Ingram College in 2018. This priority of educating the whole student—intellectually, socially and emotionally—is also reflected in the university's long-term campus development plan, FutureVU, which aims to align Vanderbilt's physical spaces with its academic mission.

Zeppos also oversaw the separation of Vanderbilt University and Vanderbilt Medical Center in 2016, a prescient decision that positioned both institutions for long-term success and independence.

In August 2019, Zeppos became chancellor emeritus after serving as Vanderbilt's top leader for more than 11 years. Provost and Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs Susan R. Wentz served as interim chancellor until July 1, 2020.

Daniel Diermeier, an internationally renowned scholar of political science and managerial leadership, began his tenure as the ninth chancellor of Vanderbilt University on July 1, 2020. Formerly provost and dean of the Harris School of Public Policy at the University of Chicago, and a longtime professor at Stanford University and Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management, Diermeier was selected by the Vanderbilt Board of Trust after an extensive worldwide search.

Today, Vanderbilt University is a private research university with approximately 6,900 undergraduates and more than 6,200 graduate and professional students. Comprised of 10 distinct schools and colleges on one centralized campus in downtown Nashville, Vanderbilt spurs—and is optimized for—cross-disciplinary research, fostering discoveries that impact society for the better.

Vanderbilt is consistently ranked as one of the nation's top 15 universities by publications such as U.S. News & World Report, with several programs that consistently rank in the top 10. Testament to the current leadership, faculty, staff and students, Vanderbilt was ranked #1 for financial aid and #2 for happiest students by the Princeton Review in 2018, and was recently ranked #10 in Reuter's assessment of the World's Most Innovative Universities. Cutting-edge, cross-disciplinary research and liberal arts, combined with strong ties to a distinguished medical center, create an invigorating atmosphere where students tailor their education to meet their goals and researchers collaborate to solve complex questions affecting our health, culture and society.

Vanderbilt, an independent, privately supported university, and the separate, non-profit Vanderbilt University Medical Center share a respected name and enjoy close collaboration through education and research. Together, the number of people employed by these two organizations exceeds that of the largest private employer in the Middle Tennessee region.

DANIEL DIERMEIER

CHANCELLOR

An internationally renowned political scientist and management scholar, Daniel Diermeier is the ninth chancellor of Vanderbilt University. Diermeier is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, the Guggenheim Foundation and the Canadian Institute of Advanced Research. His teaching and research focus on formal political theory, political institutions, the interaction of business and politics, text analytics, behavioral models of politics, and crisis and reputation management. He has published four books and more than 100 research articles in academic journals, mostly in the fields of political science, economics and management, and in other areas ranging from linguistics, sociology and psychology to computer science, operations research and applied mathematics.

From 2016 until 2020, Diermeier served as provost of the University of Chicago, where he was also David Lee Shillinglaw Distinguished Service Professor in the Harris School of Public Policy and the College at University of Chicago's Department of Political Science.

Through his career as a faculty member, Diermeier has combined excellence as a researcher and teacher with an entrepreneurial mindset.

Diermeier started his career as an assistant professor at the Stanford Graduate School of Business in 1994. Northwestern University recruited him to its Kellogg School of Management in 1997 to build its political economy program. He rose quickly through the ranks at Kellogg, receiving early promotion to professor just four years after earning his Ph.D.

In 2000, he was appointed IBM Professor of Regulation and Competitive Practice and, later, director of the Ford Motor Company Center for Global Citizenship at Kellogg. During his time at Northwestern, he also held appointments in economics, political science, linguistics and law. He won multiple teaching awards at Kellogg, including the L.G. Lavengood Outstanding Professor of the Year Award and the Alumni Professor of the Year Award, and he was a 2007 recipient of the Faculty Pioneer Award from the Aspen Institute, called the "Oscars of the business school world" by Financial Times.

He co-founded the Northwestern Institute on Complex Systems and served as the founding academic director of the CEO Perspectives program, one of the leading development programs for C-level executives. He also served as chairman and co-founder of the Northwestern Global Health Foundation, dedicated to developing low-cost medical devices and 2012 winner of a Chicago Innovation Award in the Up-and-Comer category.

In 2014, after 17 years at Northwestern, Diermeier was appointed dean of the Harris School of Public Policy at the University of Chicago. He led the transformation of the Harris School into the third-ranked public policy school in the nation. He launched a strategy that doubled student enrollment while increasing selectivity, a successful fundraising effort that included funds for the new $80 million, LEED Platinum-certified Keller Center, a 50 percent growth in faculty and the recruitment of diverse students, faculty and staff.

Under Diermeier's leadership, the Harris School became the home of the International Innovation Corps, the Place Lab and the Harris Policy Labs. In 2015, the Harris School created its Diversity and Inclusion Advisory Board and developed bridge programs to increase the number of students from underrepresented minority groups. This program was able to attract significant philanthropic support and led to a notable increase in minority students at the Harris School.

In 2016, the University of Chicago named Diermeier provost, with responsibility for all academic and research programs across the university and oversight of the university's budget. His initial priority as provost was to improve the University of Chicago's financial performance without impeding its path toward greater eminence. He reorganized the Office of the Provost and engaged in a faculty-led, multiyear diversity and inclusion initiative. The initiative included a campuswide climate survey and convened administrators from peer institutions to develop cross-university initiatives to improve the faculty pipeline of underrepresented minorities and women in STEM areas. During his tenure, he appointed six female deans and three female vice provosts.

Diermeier led major expansions of the faculty in engineering and applied science, including the creation of the Pritzker School of Molecular Engineering and a university-wide expansion of computer science and data analytics that doubled the number of faculty in those disciplines. He also continued improvements in economics, policy, business, and urban studies as well as sustained investment in the humanities and social sciences.

During Diermeier's tenure, the College at University of Chicago, home of the university's undergraduate education, experienced significant growth while increasing selectivity and yield. The University of Chicago also significantly increased the diversity of its incoming classes with targeted programs for first-generation, African American and Hispanic students. Diermeier also focused on improving doctoral and non-degree education, a process that started with a campuswide faculty-student committee on graduate education.

As Diermeier led its academic functions, the University of Chicago increased its level of global engagement, culminating in the opening of the Francis and Rose Yuen Campus in Hong Kong, which won a 2019 Prix Versailles architecture and design award. The university also increased its level of engagement with the City of Chicago and local communities through various collaborative initiatives, including the Mansueto Institute for Urban Innovation and the Urban Labs, a faculty-led research center working with city governments to address challenges in areas such as crime, education, health, poverty, and energy and environment.

Diermeier has served as a board member for the University of Chicago Medical Center, Argonne National Laboratory, the Civic Consulting Alliance, CityBase, the Marine Biological Laboratory, the National Opinion Research Center, the Field Museum of Natural History and the management board of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Throughout his career, Diermeier has been an adviser to governments, nonprofits and leading companies including Abbott, Accenture, Allianz, the City of Chicago, the Government of Canada, Ernst & Young, Exelon, the FBI, Hyatt, Johnson & Johnson, Medtronic, Metro Group, PricewaterhouseCoopers, State Farm, UnitedHealth Group, and the United States Olympic and Paralympic Committee.

A first-generation college graduate, Diermeier earned a Ph.D. in political science from the University of Rochester. He also holds master's degrees in political science from the University of Rochester and the University of Munich, and he earned a master's degree in philosophy from the University of Southern California.

Diermeier and his wife, Ariela Lazar, have twin sons, both in college, one at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, and one at New York University Tisch School's Kanbar Institute of Film and Television.

CANDICE STOREY LEE

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

Candice Storey Lee, a native of Madison, Alabama, and former student-athlete at Vanderbilt, is the vice chancellor for athletics and university affairs and athletic director.

Lee is Vanderbilt's first female athletic director and the first African American woman to head an SEC athletics program. Lee has served as an integral leader at the university and in athletics for almost 20 years, most recently serving as deputy director of the program, a role she was appointed to in 2016. She has also served as the department's senior woman administrator since 2004.

In addition to her responsibilities of overseeing the day-to-day operations of the athletics department, she is also the sport administrator for the football and women's basketball programs.

In 2019, Sports Business Journal named Lee to its "Power Players: College Sports" list, which recognizes individuals who have "distinguished themselves as some of the best thinkers, problem-solvers and dealmakers in college sports and they will play a distinctly important role in its future." In 2018, Adidas named Lee to its prestigious "NEXT UP" class, comprising "senior-level administrators, handpicked by some of the most respected athletic directors in the industry, who are believed to be ready to take the next step as athletic directors in their own right."

Along with her previous roles as associate vice chancellor and deputy athletic director, Lee served as the department's senior woman administrator from 2004-20. She oversaw the day-to-day operations of the athletics department and served as the sport administrator for the football and women's basketball programs. Lee formerly served as a member of the NCAA Women's Basketball Rules Committee, is the former chair of the NCAA Division I Women's Lacrosse Committee and a former chair of the SEC Senior Woman Administrators.

In September 2019, Lee was named a 2019-20 fellow of the Tennessee Independent Colleges and Universities Association's Pressnell Executive Leadership Institute. She is a member of the 2012 Class of Leadership Nashville, the 2012 Vanderbilt Leadership Academy, the YWCA of Middle Tennessee Board of Directors and the SEC Executive Committee.

As a captain and four-year letter winner for Vanderbilt's women's basketball team, Lee graduated with a bachelor of science degree in human and organizational development in 2000. She also received her master's degree in counseling from Vanderbilt in 2002, and in 2012, Lee earned her doctorate from Vanderbilt in higher education administration.

Lee has been instrumental in Vanderbilt Athletics' success in proving that excellent academics and excellent athletics can coexist. In 2019, Vanderbilt finished with an overall NCAA Graduation Success Rate of 97, the highest of any SEC program for the fifth straight year. During the 2019-20 season, student-athletes also exceeded a 3.0 grade-point average for the 15th straight year. The NCAA Academic Progress Rates for the 2018-19 academic year showed seven of Vanderbilt's varsity programs earning perfect — and nation-leading — scores.

Since 2007, Vanderbilt's student-athletes have won five national championships, in baseball (two), women's bowling (two) and women's tennis. Vanderbilt has also won over two dozen league titles and tournaments, including the Southeastern Conference baseball, men's and women's basketball, women's cross country, men's and women's golf, women's soccer and women's tennis championships, the Southland Conference bowling championship and the American Lacrosse Conference title. The Vanderbilt football team has played in six bowl games in recent years, breaking a 26-year drought in 2008.

She is married to Sean, who is the executive director of a Middle Tennessee housing authority.

NATIONAL HONORS

ZACH CUNNINGHAM earned his second consecutive All-America honor in 2016.

Zach Cunningham joined a prestigious list with his second consecutive All-America honor in 2016 joining Jordan Matthews (2012-13) and Josh Cody (1915-16, 1919), who is the only Vanderbilt player to ever be named a three-time All-American.

Cunningham joined Matthews, Casey Hayward, D.J. Moore and Earl Bennett as the Dores to earn All-American status in the 2000s. Moore and Bennett were two of four former Commodores to start for the Chicago Bears in the NFC Championship game in 2011. Hayward was a second round selection of the Green Bay Packers in the 2012 NFL Draft and Matthews was picked in the second round by Philadelphia. Cunningham was a second round pick by Houston in 2017.

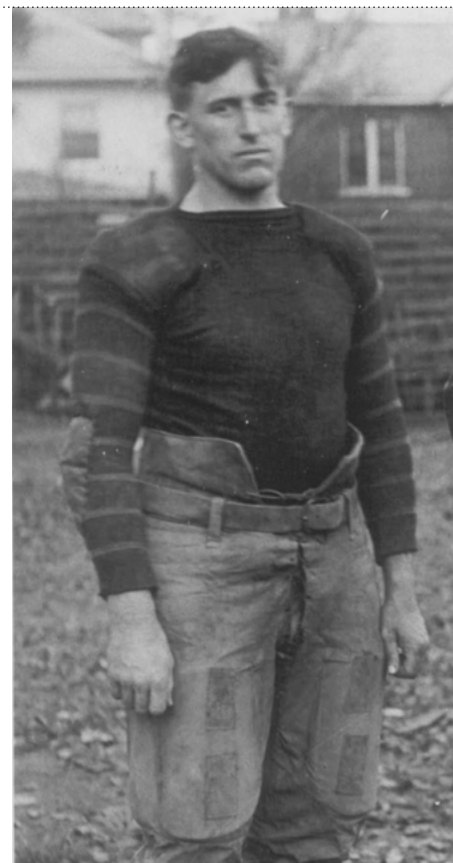

Vanderbilt's first All-American came over a century ago when fullback Owsley Manier earned recognition as a punishing rusher, fierce tackler and vital cog in the Commodores' 9-1 campaign of 1906.

Since Manier's accomplishments in the early years of Dan McGugin's legendary tenure in Nashville, 37 Commodore players have become All-Americans based on their playing achievements.

Josh Cody, a powerful tackle and one of five former Vanderbilt players in the College Football Hall of Fame, is the Commodores' only three-time All-American, earning recognition in 1915, 1916 and 1919.

Two Commodores have been named All-Americans in the same year on three occasions: 1951, 1982 and 1983.

In the last two decades, Vanderbilt All-Americans have included four defensive standouts and three wide receivers.

JOSH CODY set a Vanderbilt record by earning All-American honors in three seasons (1915-16, '19).
